DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 5 recites the limitation "radio test pulses" in lines 1-2. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim. The examiner suggests claim 5 should depend from claim 4 to correct this.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Koch (4,474,179). Koch discloses an electrical power supply comprising:
inherently an electrode and return pin as at the power supply/HF generator;
a circuit that can provide a current to the electrode pin, and an indication of the electrical characteristics of the treated tissue in response to the current flowing through the tissue and the pins, i.e., monitoring the impedance (therefore the voltage) of the tissue and its time rate of change ( $dz/dt$ ) and using the results to adjust the initial power and for establishing the optimum time for switching off the HF power (Abstract and col. 2, line 39-col. 3, line 13).

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Shapiro et al. (4,372,315). Shapiro et al. disclose an electrical power supply comprising:

inherently an electrode and return pin as at the power supply/RF generator;
a circuit that can provide a current to the electrode pin, and an indication of the electrical characteristics of the treated tissue in response to the current flowing through the tissue and the pins, i.e., an impedance sensing epilator that measures the impedance seen by the probe for the purpose of adjusting the pulse of the RF power applied to the probe (Abstract and col. 3, lines 3-53).

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kliceck et al. (5,370,645). Kliceck et al. disclose an electrical power supply comprising:

inherently an electrode and return pin as at the power supply/RF generator;
a circuit that can provide a current to the electrode pin, and an indication of the electrical characteristics of the treated tissue in response to the current flowing through the tissue and the pins, i.e., monitoring the impedance (therefore the voltage) of the tissue and is capable of determining its time rate of change ( $dz/dt$  since it has a processor) and using the results to adjust the high voltage power supply in the electrosurgical unit (Abstract and col. 6, line 44-col. 7, line 29).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 9-13 are allowed.

Claims 4 and 6-8 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim 5 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The examiner suggests that claim 1 is sufficiently broad that a typical ohm-meter would anticipate the claim.
